

Ebola : wildfire

The the air sent chills, and the wind blew rapidly, just one spark of fire could be the end, the ordeal was terrifying, but there was no stopping now.

Just one little leaf caught on fire, who knew it could spread so quickly. but that one little leaf went a long way, for soon a whole tree was lit in fire flames..

It quickly swept across the forest, one after another,
people ran like animals, no water so strong could stop it, for they just had to let the immense fire spread.

Soon it died down,
and the fire had been brought to an end, although it was gone,
and the damage was done,
only a few trees survived,
for the rest were just a memory.