

A sad goodbye a beloved actor and comedian

BY: Kaleigh Einhorn

Sadly Robin Williams a beloved comedian and actor has died this summer. It is ordeal to hear but Robin Williams died on, August 11 2014. He killed himself in his home in California. He apparently was depressed by something unknown and as a result he left himself thinking the only choice left was to take his own life.

Dave Itzoff announced that Robin died in Turban California north of San Francisco in his home. "This morning, I lost my husband and my best friend, while the world lost one of its most beloved artists and beautiful human beings," stated Robin Williams's wife in the New York Times. Robin Williams was born on July 21 and died on August 11, at 63 years old. To me that's too young.

Robin was so well respected. He was so respected because he was a true man with true characteristics. Throughout his career, Robin Williams was well-respected. For example, this was shown when he was performing in England. The New York Times stated that Robin said "yo yo was up whales, house of the Windsor, keepin it real" and it never seem to offend them. This indicated that although what he said was not appropriate no one cared because Robin was truly respected. After every one of his hilarious shows the crowd clapped in joy, cheered with glee and smiled with happiness. Robin was an amazing man.

Jeremy Enger stated that in the 1970s Robin Williams became a stand-up star. Regarding he was a comedian, he was also loved for hilarious movies and shows. Dave Itzoff reported that Robin Williams went to Julliard School and studied acting there. He eventually started to act in all different movies and shows. Like Aladdin or birdcage or lastly Mrs. Doubtfire. Although these are just a few Robin has been in so many more.

Other people often noticed Robin Williams than just his fans for example people like president Obama would say things like "Robin Williams is a one of a kind." His classmates who are now remorseful voted Robin Williams most likely not to succeed in high school because look where he got. Although he is gone, we will always remember Robin McLaurin Williams.

Snapchat leaks out personal photos

About a year ago Snapchat (a social media website and app) created a website called snapsaved.com. Someone hacked snapsaved.com and stole 40,000 personal photos. People are now worried that their account is next! Sarah Frier explains, Snapchat makes a lot of money by allowing people to send photos to each other. Images that you post on Snapchat disappear in 9-10 seconds after you post them. But the people who sign up for Snapsaved their photos are stored there so they are open to anyone who would hack Snapsaved. Snapchat users who are not on Snapsaved.com their photos could still be at risk because if they send photos to anyone who is using Snapsaved.com.

According to Mike Isaac, he said in an informative tone, "They agreed to talk over an Internet phone connection but went to considerable effort to conceal their identities: They used a random name generation program to create their online handle, "Schmidt Gizi," claimed to be using so-called proxy computer servers to hide their location." Reported Isaac. The men who created snapsaved.com said that they had created the site after some that they meet on BlackHatworld.com had hired them.

based in China. A people on the online message board 4chan said to have access a huge stash of private photos. They have taken Snapsaved.com offline "Schmidt Gizi" (an unknown man) was talking over the hack over with the creators of snapsaved.com. "Schmidt Gizi" tried to conceal his location but trucks could be heard in the background, which most likely means he was outside talking. "Two year old Snapchat was achieved a multi-billion dollar valuation by creating a technology for disappearing selfies aimed at teenagers." Reported Sarah Frier.

From iPhone 5 to iPhone 6 to the futuristic watch

Excitedly, the new Apple Watch is the watch everyone is talking about.

Many people are so excited to have it, but it is making it hard for other watch companies to sell their watches. All though it is making it hard for other watches to sell apple fans are dying for this watch. According to Steve Lohr, people like apple because their products are easy to use. Misleading and negative, though the Apple Watch has become a big hit, the watch is causing some controversy. People like Nick Bilton are not happy about it and he says “While the first wristwatches were developed in the 16th century, it took less than a day for the Apple Watch to become the only one people want to talk about.” Reported Hanna Smogde. Richerd Goodwin thinks that, “though it is one product it comes in multiple color options, two sizes and three styles” this is making it nearly impossible to compete with.

Even though the wearable smart phones have not come out yet, all of the other Apple products indicate how successful this watch could be. Now Apple is expecting the wearable bands, which include everything every Apple product has plus many different revised fitness trackers, will be popular. Apple has been working on these for a long time and has already increased the head count to 4 million workers devoted just to the apple watch.

The apple watch, which is also known as the wearable iPhone, is almost an exact copy of all the apple products (iPhone, iPod, etc.). All of the watches have and they are all touch screens and rechargeable batteries. Throughout the development of the watch, apple was actually worried about the batteries life. But besides that from the apple watch you can text, play games, track your fitness, and last off all tell what time it is. “We are so proud that we have come up with a watch that does it all and we hope everyone enjoys it” elaborated Apple.

This watch is an amazing watch for your everyday things

Hockey

Hockey, speed and grace mixed with collision and violence. A defenseman passes from the mid line to a teammate weaving into the opponent's zone, but the puck tips off his stick to another teammate, who tries a quick shot at the goalie. It deflects off an opponent toward the net, but the goalie gets a piece of it, just as an opponent flattens the shooter and the defenseman hops over the boards to be replaced. All this happens in two seconds. How can such chaos be in one place? These are not baseball's batter-by-batter segments, or football's down-by-down plays. There are too many things going on in a hockey game, and too many players doing them too rapidly to easily to calculate the inner mechanics of the game.
